

Government Data Access Requests Approach

Anaplan, Inc., and its affiliates are committed to being fully transparent about our privacy practices. Anaplan does not voluntarily disclose any personal data of customers to Government Authorities or otherwise grant them access to such data. In addition, Anaplan has not built, and will not purposefully build, backdoors to enable government actors to access its data or information systems, and has not changed, and will not purposefully change, its processes in a manner that facilitates government access to data. Anaplan has in place an internal policy that governs Anaplan’s personnel responses to any potential government data access requests.

Anaplan requires Government Authorities to adhere to applicable laws governing how and when they may access data. Anaplan requires Government Authorities to first seek to obtain data directly from Anaplan’s customers.

If you are an official representative of Government Authority authorized to seek data from Anaplan, you may submit your legal request by emailing legalprocess@anaplan.com.

Transparency Report

Anaplan is committed to publish reports regarding legal requests for customer data that we receive from Government Authorities. Anaplan will publish this report once annually for the preceding calendar year.
